The Rights of Infants and Toddlers with Special Needs Eligible for Tennessee's Early Intervention System

Early Intervention is crucial for providing a good education to children with special needs.

Tennessee's Early Intervention System (TEIS) is a voluntary educational program for families with children ages birth through two years of age with disabilities or developmental delays. The program is governed by Part C of the Individual's with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Every state has a Part C program and establishes its own eligibility rules. In Tennessee, children diagnosed with certain disabilities, those whose eligibility evaluation results show a 25% delay in two developmental areas or a 40% in one may be eligible for TEIS. Physician information is also used in determining eligibility.

When a child is determined eligible, the family may decide to participate in TEIS and an Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) team meeting. Services and supports are determined at IFSP meetings based on the child and family's individual needs.

All team members, including parents, have a responsibility to talk with each other, sharing progress made as well as any concerns. Parents must be present for early intervention services and notify their service provider as soon as possible if unable to keep an appointment. Parents should ask questions of their providers in order to feel comfortable in working on activities when the provider is not present.

IDEA and Tennessee State Law describe the rights of parents whose children are eligible for Part C:

Parents have the right to:

- * Consent to evaluation, assessment, and provision of early intervention services.

Parents have the right to accept or decline any early intervention service without jeopardizing the provision of other services.

- * Review early intervention records.

Parents have the right to ask to see their child's TEIS record relating to assessment, screening, eligibility determination, and the development and implementation of the IFSP.

- * Receive notice of actions proposed by the early intervention system.

Parents should receive written prior notice, in their native language if at all possible, as evaluation and services are begun, and of details related to a change in services.

- * Require that personal information be kept confidential.

Information regarding the child or family may only be shared with other EI agencies by written consent of the parent. Release of information without parental consent is only permitted in certain circumstances.

- * File an administrative complaint.

An administrative complaint is an informal process for resolving conflicts between families and the Part C system, TEIS.

- * Request a mediation.

A mediation is a process for resolving disagreements between families and the Part C system, TEIS, using an impartial mediator.

- * Request a due process hearing.

A due process hearing is a formal procedure in which an administrative judge hears from both parties and decides on an outcome.

- * Forms for any of the above may be requested from your service coordinator or from the Department of Education's Legal Department listed on the back of this brochure.

Children have the right to:

- * A surrogate parent.

A surrogate parent must be appointed to represent the interest of a child who has no parent or guardian, is a ward of the state, or the state cannot, after reasonable attempts, locate the child's parent or legal guardian.
